Christine joined Freestone Capital Management as a Client Advisor in 2014. She works directly with her clients to navigate and understand complex financial situations to reach their unique goals and values. She focuses on building customized investment portfolios through comprehensive financial planning. She came to Freestone from Cornerstone Advisors where she worked as an associate on their client management team. Prior to her experience at Cornerstone, she worked at Montlake Capital, a Seattle-based private equity firm investing in growth stage companies.

Education

Christine earned a BA in Business Administration from the University of Washington with a focus in Finance and Economics. She holds the Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA®) and Certified Financial Planner (CFP®) designations.

Outside Freestone

Christine lives in Redmond with her husband Tyler and her sons, James and Nathan. She finds joy by spending time with her family and friends, and can be found cheering on her Washington Huskies and Seattle Seahawks. She is passionate for educating women to better understand and participate in the management of their finances.
